CSU ERWC 3.0 Customizable Student Reader

The reading selections in this customizable collection form the basis of the CSU Expository Reading and Writing Course (ERWC). The course is designed to foster critical thinking through a rhetorical approach to reading and writing.

Version 3.0 has expanded to include more attention to concepts such as audience, purpose, context, and genre and to the process of making rhetorical decisions and taking rhetorical action.

This reader is available for purchase by high schools that have adopted the CSU Expository Reading and Writing Curriculum. Other course materials can be obtained only by participating in professional learning programs sponsored by the California State University and the California County Superintendents Educational Services Association.

The ERWC 3.0 Customizable Reader does not include full-length texts of books or plays.
